

Ravi Naik, solicitor

Ravi Naik is a solicitor with a unique practice at the forefront of data rights and technology. Ravi represents clients in high profile and agenda-setting cases such as the successful prosecution of Cambridge Analytica and clients across Europe in the leading regulatory complaint against the advertising technology industry.

Ravi was awarded the Law Society's prestigious Human Rights Lawyer of the Year award in 2018 for his pioneering work on data rights and contribution to human rights more broadly. As part of that practice, Ravi is regularly instructed to defend and extend the rights of journalists.

Ravi is also regularly sought to deliver talks, lectures and written pieces on the development of rights in technology. Over the last year, he has had work published by Harvard and Oxford University, as well as delivering keynote speeches in Westminster and Washington D.C.
